Public conference on migration by Jérémi Guélat as part of the exhibition En terrain sensible

The exhibition « En terrain sensible. Regards d'artistes sur la montagne » wants to sensitize visitors, through photography, to the challenges of sustainable development. Climate changes, in the heart of this questioning, cause resource shortages, a general water crisis, natural disasters and other irreversible environmental degradations. They are also the source of some conflict and population displacement.

This last point will be presented by Jeremie Guélat, PhD student at the University of Neuchâtel and specialist in migration issue, during a public conference.

Monday 7th March at the Médiathèque Valais Martigny.

18:00 Guided visit of the exhibition

19:30 Conference
